Christa Fajen

»What makes Urban Sketching so special to me is that my drawings allow me to recall the characteristics and emotions of a place, even years later. For me, it is a way of training perception— independent of creating a direct representation.«

Gisa Gericke

»What inspires me most about Urban Sketching is witnessing time and again, how uniquely each sketcher sees and interprets the world around us. Urban Sketching allows me to slow down, observe deeply, and be fully present in the moment.«

urban sketch lab 01

Contour and space

Together, we will investigate how line, shape, and space interact. Our focus will first be on discovering the expressive quality of our own individual lines, allowing them to exist independently before deciding how—or whether—to define or fill the spaces they enclose.

June 21, 2026

11am-5pm, Frankfurt*

Negative space, shape and detail

02

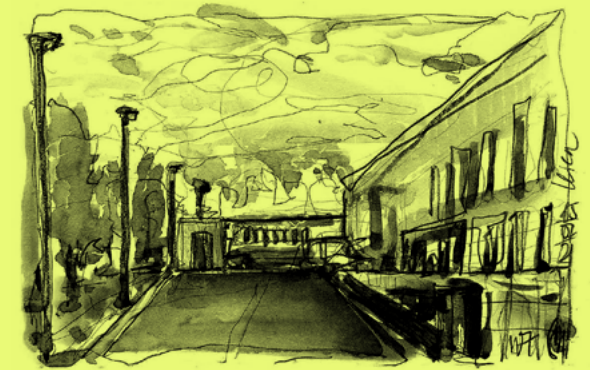

This time, we will begin our sketches with a shape rather than a line. Together, we will use a technique that allows us to recognize and establish areas of light from the very beginning. Only afterwards will we focus on observing and incorporating details.

July 12, 2026

11am-5pm, Frankfurt*

»Right from the start, Gisa and Chris created a warm and welcoming atmosphere... The workshop was thoughtfully structured... The live demo and personal guidance... were excellent!« Imke D.

Experimenting with light and shadow

03

Light and shadow are essential elements of our perception—and therefore also immensely important in portraying a place. Together we will immerse ourselves in this fascinating subject, explore its expressive potential and explore how our personal impressions and emotions can be translated onto paper.
